

More than one million people—men, women and children—can't be wrong!

Fishing in Michigan has become a big business. Nearly one-third of the million plus fishing licenses issued in 1949 will go to non-resident tourists. Fishing and Michigan are one-and-the-same to several hundred thousand travelers.

All this is timely. Saturday (June 25) opens the traditional bass and panfish season on lakes otherwise closed to year-around fishing.

This point bears emphasis for the legislature permitted the state conservation department, beginning in 1947, to designate 20 lakes for year-around fishing. The latest lake on the experimental list is Hess Lake in Newaygo County.

Anglers may fish at any time, summer or winter for bluegills, sunfish, perch, rock bass and white bass.

The 1949 legislature weighed evidence submitted by fish management experts and voted to liberalize the rules still further. Effective Sept. 23, the six-inch size limit on pan fish will be removed.

The legal limit continues at 25 in any combination per day. The bluegill and sunfish season will be lengthened one month, ending March 31 instead of Feb. 28.

Why this change in thinking on conservation of fish? Year-around fishing and removal of size limits are complete reversals of the sportsman's traditional attitudes.

The answer is simple. "We have reached that stage in believing that the lake is one of those things that confound the sportsman. At first, it doesn't seem to make sense. Then the fish management expert brings in actual proof. Tests show that most lakes have countless thousands of the young game and panfish. Often the fish population is so great that fish have trouble growing up to adult size. Stunting follows.

What counts is the availability of food and protective habitat. Brush shelters are placed along the shores of lakes. Trout streams have been improved by planting 10,000 white and red pine, mullein ash, hawthorne, rose multiflora and willow. These are planted primarily to provide shade and to prevent erosion. This work is financed by 40 cents out of fishermen's license fee.

46th Division's Field Training Plans Here Announced

Governor's Day Set For August 13

Field training plans for the 1949 encampment of the 46th Division, Michigan National Guard, were announced Sunday (June 19) by Major General Ralph A. Loveland, commanding general, at a staff conference held at Lansing.

Organization commanders from all parts of the state participated in the conference. Encampment dates for army units have been set for August 6 to 20. It is expected that approximately 6,000 men will participate in the 1949 encampment. An additional 1,000 will be in the field with the Air National Guard units July 30 to August 13 at the Camp Grayling Air Base.

A feature of the 1949 encampment will be the training of selected personnel from each unit in air transport problems. An air transportability demonstration team will be assigned by the regular army to Camp Grayling for instruction purposes. The demonstration team will be equipped with 18 C-82 and C-46 type aircraft for demonstration of division air transport problems.

Other army demonstration teams participating in the 1949 encampment will include an armored division team, an anti-aircraft team and a demolition team.

Changes in the physical layout at Camp Grayling were announced at the conference. Included in the million dollar camp improvement program now under way is the construction of a new regimental bivouac area, three new 50-target small arms ranges, a new tank training center and the expansion of all camp utilities.

Another feature of the 1949 encampment will be a pre-camp mess school for the instruction of mess personnel during the week preceding the regular encampment. Instructors will be provided by Fifth Army Headquarters, Chicago. All units will assign two cooks or cooks helpers to participate in this training course.

Governor's Day at Camp is scheduled for August 13. Division memorial services will be held the following morning.

Comins Trips Grayling, 5-4

The Grayling Independents lost their first game in two years last Sunday as they committed five errors at Comins and dropped the contest 5 to 4. Each team collected 9 hits but Comins only made 2 misplays and Abbe, the Comins pitcher issued one base on balls while Bob "Musty" Gildner, Grayling hurler gave up two walks.

Grayling swept through a ten game league schedule last year without a loss and had been victorious in three league games this year until Sunday. Last year, the locals lost but two games. One to the Roscommon Shamrocks in a non-league fray and the other to West Branch there. They also have defeated Grayling this year in a non-league game.

Mio will be the scene of the League All Star game this Sunday as the best players of the eastern division meet the luminaries of the west's three teams. Comins, Mio and Fairview form the east half of the league while Grayling, Roscommon and Houghton Lake are the league's western members.

On July 3, the Grayling team will travel to Mio to make up the season opener with that city's team, which was rained out the first of the season. On July 4, Lake City will invade Grayling for a holiday ball game.

Gildner struck out 8 men last Sunday while Abbe of "Comins whiffed 7. Ted Bennett caught for Grayling and Emig was the Comins backstop. Gildner with two singles and a double in four times at bat and Max Niederer with two hits in four appearances led the Grayling offense. Comins scored three runs in the first inning and added one more in each of the third and fourth innings. Grayling put across a lone run in the first and three more in the sixth. In the ninth inning the locals had a man on third with only one out, but were unable to get him across home plate for a tie.

Plan Fireworks July 4 Here

The Grayling Legion. Post through the cooperation of the Grayling businessmen are planning on a lavish fireworks display here the night of July 4th.

The successful display last year brought quite a large crowd to Grayling and because of that, plans are going ahead for another this year. The place for firing of the many types of fireworks has not yet been decided upon, it was said.

Following an afternoon ball game here between Lake City and Grayling the fireworks display should windup the holiday week end in a truly American spirit.

Races were run by all from two to sixty years old and prizes awarded. Julie Lovely and Gary Gugin won the ground prize. The children arrived home soaked but happy after the days activities. The second truck load was caught in the storm.

City Placing Stop Signs

Another sign of the growth of Grayling is the stop signs being placed this week by the city in various parts of town. The thorough streets will be State Street and Maple Street from US 27 to Michigan Avenue, Michigan Avenue its entire length except at the traffic light at Cedar Street and Ogema Street all its length except at the two corners by the Grayling School which will be four way stop intersections.

The move toward stop signs is an attempt to move traffic more easily from various parts of town without the danger of intersection collisions. It is to be expected that Grayling motorists will forget the signs, now and then, during the first week or so after they are placed, but, they are being put in by the City for the motorists own protection.

Plum and Smith Streets have been resurfaced and automobile traffic are packing the new coating into a fine hard road.

Fires In The Forests

Summer and fall constitute two of the most serious fire periods in this country. Forests and fields dry out, awaiting only the touch of a spark to burst into flame. Tourists throng the highways. Thousands of campers go into the woods. Commercial camps and vacation spots of all kinds run at capacity.

Every year sees the destruction of magnificent forests, accompanied by a tragic toll of wild life. Some forest fires do occur spontaneously, from lightning or other natural causes. But a far greater number can be attributed to human carelessness and ignorance. The motorist who throws burning cigarette butts and matches from his car, and the camper who leaves a fire without dousing it with water and burying it with earth until every spark is out and every ember is cold, are two of the worst offenders. The whole nation is the poorer because of them.

A plain duty confronts every one who goes into the outdoors for any reason. It is to protect a heritage which, once destroyed, may take centuries to replace. The various public and private bodies which deal with fire are doing a fine job. They are making available to all simple, easy rules for fire safety. They maintain patrols and fire fighting organizations. But they can do little without public co-operation. A forest fire can spread with incredible swiftness, and be completely beyond control in a matter of minutes under certain conditions. Make the most of the woods—and save them for the future.

Easing the engine to a stop at a water tank, the old engineer briefed his green, young fireman. The fireman climbed to the tender, as per instructions, and managed to bring the spout down all right. But somehow his foot tangled in the chain and he floundered right into the tank. The engineer regarded him and his plight with a jaundiced eye.

"Just fill the tank with water, Sonny," he drawled. "No need to tamp it down."

 Who'll be First with the Last Word?

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

ACT QUICKLY—and in your neighborhood it might be you.

For there's no doubt that this exciting new Riviera model—styled and executed by Buick—is the very last word in new body types.

It has, as you see, the swift and racy lines of a Convertible, made even more distinctive by a bold new sweep of chromium along its fenders.

But the top is solid—a single sheet of stout steel, neatly finished off inside with chromium bows. And a broad rear window curves gracefully around, giving really abundant rearward vision.

Push-button controls drop all windows out of sight at a touch, leaving not even a doorpost to block your outlook. And the interior trim is the richest yet—a really stunning creation inside as well as out.

As pictured here the Riviera is now in production on the Buick ROADMASTER chassis—which means 150-hp Fireball power, the silken luxury of Dynaflo Drive, and the matchless levelness of the Buick "dream ride." That means "the last word" in brilliant performance as well as in luxurious dress and styling.

Production on this high-styled road star is limited, as you might expect.

To be "first with the last word," therefore, it is wise to see your Buick dealer soon about getting your order in.

CHILDHOOD
Encore
By
ROGER S. VREELAND

THE house still stands at 215 Inwood Lane, Claremont. The Inwood Lane is important. Remember that. The number doesn't make any difference, because there wasn't another house within 500 yards.

Honeysuckle at the end of the piazza entwined a lattice screen and you could really suck the honey. Uncle Clem — who wasn't really my uncle — had shown me how. Canas grew funnel-shaped way up past the piazza railing. Mother's round peony garden on the side lawn by the swing that my father had made (I never remembered him) grew luscious creamy pink and white flowers.

Inside was the brick fireplace before which the three of us would sit in the winter. Uncle Clem taking care of the fire and telling us stories while Mother sowed, and I would watch the picture of Nero's Horses over the mantel until I saw their eyes roll and breath steam out of their nostrils.

This was the house I was born in. It was big and it was old and it was full of strange nooks from cellar to attic. I knew Mother liked it for she often said she hoped some day to buy it.

Considering she was a widow, my mother did well in providing for the two of us until Mr. Hale came. That was Uncle Clem's real name. She didn't need the small amount he paid her. It was just from the kindness of her heart that she gave him a home. He was old, feeble, bent over; he carried a cane most of the time.

I know those things now. But strangely I remembered him as spry, full of pep and fun. He was good and kind and always thinking of things to do.

MOTHER never knew where he came from, until after he was gone. The first I ever saw of him was when he appeared at the door into the living room and "entertained" him until Mother came in from the chicken coop.

Mother was cool to him at first. She was always suspicious of strangers. But I saw the kind of fellow he was right away. He told her his family was gone and asked if she had a room to spare. He said he had a little money, enough to pay for his room and board.

Uncle Clem spent nearly all his time with me. Sometimes he would forget what we were playing, and sit with a kind of dreamy, faraway look. Then he would snap back into what we were doing. He got to calling my mother Mom, and I guess she didn't mind.

Once I heard him tell her that his working days were over and he enjoyed trying to be a boy again.

But there were some things I couldn't understand about him.

His will was made out to Mother, leaving her enough to buy the house.

When we played hiding games he'd seem to have an uncanny sense of where to look. He knew about the flat stone over the abandoned well behind the chicken coop before I showed it to him, the loose board on the floor of my closet, the recesses over the eaves in the attic, and the door to the unused cold storage vault in the cellar. He even knocked on one of the inside walls where it sounded hollow, and he said: "There was a window there once."

When Uncle Clem died I cried all night. Mother had to go into his personal things. His will was made out to her, leaving her enough to buy the house. I'll never forget her cry of surprise when she came across an old newspaper clipping he had saved. It was about his retirement from business. I have it now.

"Clement B. Hale," it began, "was served a testimonial dinner last night by the Insurance company which he has served for 46 years. This is a record for the company, stated John H. Quinn, the president, who presented Mr. Hale with a gold watch. Hale, who now retires on pension, was born March 18, 1852, on Inwood Lane, Claremont."

lakes the state has acquired nearly 380 fishing sites, 281 on lakes and 118 on streams. Some land was obtained due to tax reversion; others were purchased from private owners.

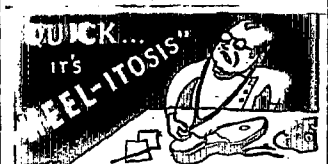

Because fish ladders at dams have not proved to be entirely satisfactory, the department has transferred thousands of walleyed pike and rainbows to power dam ponds above.

Dams to provide trout ponds have been built in southern Michigan at Spring Creek, near Pontiac, Sylvan Creek in the Waterloo area, and a tributary to the Dowagiac River near Summerville.

Noxious fish, such as carp, have been removed by netting them in 15 lakes. The waters then were stocked with trout.

While the bass and panfish prospects are steadily improving, the brook trout continues to present a problem. The pressure is greater than ever as more fishermen turn to flycasting. Overfishing is depleting the trout population in Michigan streams.

Year-round fishing for panfish, now on a limited and experimental scale offers the best hope.

TALL

BY PETE

If you're driving up through the Sable River country this summer and find yourself on M-23 north of Tawas City, you'll soon come to the beautiful resort town of Oscoda. Suppose you're staying overnight there and it's your first trip. Get the kids to bed then you and your wife walk back down the high bridge over the AuSable and enjoy the incomparable north Michigan evening air, and let your minds go back a hundred years.

Oscoda won't be there at all, of course, but a fisherman's village called "Aus-ko-do-young" (where the plains begin). The bridge won't be there either, and on the south side of the river another cluster of fishermen's houses will be called Sable. Small boats will be lighting to and from barges anchored out in the lake where the inhabitants will trade their only commodities, (fish and fur) for the necessities of life including a goodly supply of whiskey.

You'll notice the deep sand on every side, and remember that the French word "Sable" means sand, and not a valuable fur as you had thought. As you begin picking your way up the riverbank looking for a place to stay "all night" you'll begin to realize that the French knew what they were talking about and be glad to snap back to the present day of good roads, gas stations and tourist camps, although it is said that once you get the sand of the AuSable River country in your shoes you'll come back again and again and you'll pick up some old-timers to tell you some of the tales of romance and tragedy that have come out of this strange and backward land.

One story is that on the bridge where you now are standing, or were standing a hundred years ago, when it wasn't the grand structure it is today but just a foot-bridge of log stringer that swayed and trembled as you walked across, an Indian girl with her baby jumped in and tried to end it all.

A young logger, scion of a wealthy lumbering family down in the Saginaw Bay country who had moved with his wife to the AuSable River country a year or two before, where he was engaged in scouting timber, came running down the trail. "Hey Hey," he yelled, you can't do that! Come up to my house, my Missus'll fix you up. He carried the Indian girl and her papoose out of the raging water and up the bank, little realizing that he was saving his own son's life as he did so. Less than a month later in defending his house against marauders this stalwart logger was shot through the heart, and as the door was being broken down his wife placed her baby in the Indian girl's arms.

"Take my baby," she cried, "run!" The Indian girl took her literally. She crammed the white papoose into her carrying basket and hid in to Big Bear Swamp where she knew an old trapper. She named the boy Penyeek (white potato) and raised him as her own.

More later about the Indian girl and the "white papoose." (All rights reserved by E. J. Petersen Sand Lake, Mich.)

Need For "Old Fashioned Hospitality"

The return of keen competition to the tourist business places new emphasis on old fashioned hospitality, says Robert J. Furlong, Administrative Secretary of the Michigan Tourist Council.

"With 45 other states now spending tax money to lure the tourist, Michigan finds herself in a highly competitive business," commented Furlong. "And the tourist today is shopping around. Unlike his counterpart of the past few years, he insists on getting his money's worth."

"True, we have the natural attractions and the man-made assets that makes us one of the greatest vacation lands in the world. But if our tourist business is to remain among our leading income producers, every resident of Michigan must re-align himself to the value of that tourist business to himself, his community and his state."

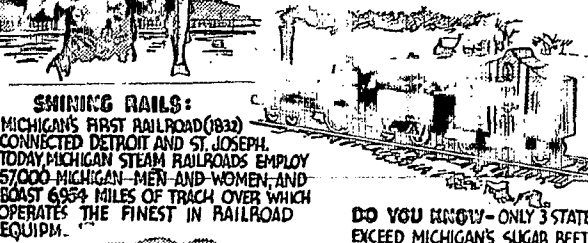

"In effect, we are all hosts with hundreds of thousands of visitors as our guests. If we are friendly hosts, those visitors will come back and Michigan will remain up front among the nation's vacation lands. Our tourist industry will continue to play its vital role in our general economy."

Furlong pointed out that the dollars left by vacationists do not remain in service stations, hotels, cabin courts and resorts. They pay doctor bills, buy food, pay taxes and become a part of the state's economic structure. For this reason, he added, the responsibility of playing host to tourists is not limited to the men and women who have something to sell to the visitor.

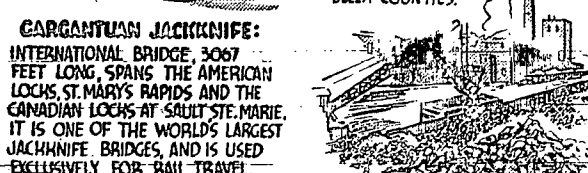

"Michigan's tourist business is everybody's business," he said. "A cheerful 'good morning' or a friendly suggestion by a man on the street is just as important as the smile of a gas station attendant as he wipes a windshield."

WINDSTORM PAYS 10,783 CLAIMS OF $491,274. 5 MOS.

The Michigan Mutual Windstorm Co., from Jan. 1 to May 31, paid out losses totaling $491,274.92, Horace Powers, secretary and treasurer, reported yesterday.

A major part of the losses were incurred during the terrific wind storm last January.

In announcing the amount of claims paid, Secretary Powers said that "because of our good surplus position and our over-all insurance program, it will not even be necessary to increase rates nor make any special assessment on our member policy-holders."

Losses paid during the five-month period were paid on 10,783 claims. Atty. Powers said that there are still approximately 1,000 claims in the process of being settled, held up for repair bills and other reasons.

Atty. Powers said that over 9,000 of these claims incurred in the storm of January 19 which swept the southern half of the Southern Peninsula, concentrated mostly in the eastern part of that territory.

"So far," Powers concluded, "we have paid out almost as much in losses this year as in the year 1948, which was an average year."

In making your plans for summertime recreation, don't overlook Michigan's 60 state park and recreation areas.

Free to everyone, they attracted more than 12,000,000 visitors last year.

Leading in attendance was the Holland State Park. It is estimated that 1,800,000 people enjoyed its facilities. Forty-four thousand permits to camp (tent and trailers) were issued by all parks. Camping is free, too. A small charge is made for electricity.

These parks are administered by the state conservation division.

Arthur C. Elmer is division chief.

Because of their popularity with Michigan residents and out-of-state tourists, the park system has plenty of headaches. For one thing, the parks range in size from 11 acres to the 60,000 acre Porcupine Mountains State Park at Ontonagon and Geoghegan counties. They include bathing beaches at Grand Haven, Holland and Warren Dunes; historic sites such as Fort Wilkins in the Copper Country; scenic Keweenaw peninsula, natural phenomena such as the Kitchiti-kipi Spring in the Palms Book State Park.

Michigan's State Park system has grown like Topsy. A 32-acre tract of timber and dunes in Leelanau county near Glen Arbor, the gift of David H. Day (then chairman of the state conservation commission) started the ball rolling in 1920. Other picnic and camping spots were added from time to time. Michigan now has 60 parks—all sizes, some good, some poor.

The conservation department would like to return 20 to counties for local recreational use. But local legislators howl to the heavens whenever the suggestion is made. And so the department spreads the legislative appropriation around the best it can.

The state park division, now with 144,000 acres of park and recreational land to administer, asked the legislature for $2,344,000 to make possible long-planned capital improvements. Much of this money was to be used to develop the southeastern Michigan recreational program in Metropolitan Detroit area.

The legislature was on the spot. Twice the voters had voted to return 78 per cent of the state sales tax revenue back to local governments. With insufficient money in the treasury to meet even the growing needs of the university and colleges the legislature sliced the $2.3 million request down to $50,000—almost nothing.

On paper the state park system has a development program which would put Michigan well into the lead nationally. The parks would attract more tourists to Michigan; the $16 million cost would be more than repaid by additional out-of-state dollars received by businessmen everywhere. Yet, to date, the legislature has appropriated only $1.75 millions in the past four years.

The state treasury squeeze, caused by earmarking of state funds for local government spenddence Maught their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, Defendants.

Order of publication.

This order was made the 27th day of May, A. D. 1949, in a suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Crawford, in Chancery, held in the City of Grayling, Crawford County, Michigan.

In this cause satisfactory proof appearing by affidavit that Prudence Maught Arnold is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but resides in the City of Delaware, State of Ohio, and that after diligent search and inquiry the whereabouts of John Shank cannot be ascertained.

On motion of W. Clarence Smith, attorney for the plaintiff, it is ordered that the appearance of the said defendant John Shank and Prudence Maught Arnold, their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, representatives and assigns, be ordered in this cause within three months from the day of this order, and that in case of their appearance or either of them, they cause their answer to be filed and served as required by law, and that in default of an appearance or answer that said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by each of said defendants, their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the Crawford Avalanche, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in Crawford County, Michigan, and a copy thereof mailed to the last known addresses as required by law.

John C. Shaffer, Circuit Judge.

This suit is filed for the purpose of quieting title to the west one-half (W 1/2) of the Northeast one-quarter (NE 1/4) of Section 32, Township 25 North, Range 2 West, Crawford County, Michigan.

W. Clarence Smith, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ing, is wrecking the state park plan. The $991,000 maintenance budget, cut from an original $1,165,000 request, must be spread over 60 parks.

Fishermen and hunters contribute to development of special facilities through purchase of licenses. Yet the state park system outnumbering the fishermen and hunters six to one in total attendance has not revenue of its own derived from those who enjoy it.

The state department was again rebuffed by the legislature in 1948 when it asked discretionary authority to charge admission and use fees if any when and where needed. Legislators were skeptical, hesitant and reluctant. The bill died in committee. The department is about convinced that broad discretionary power is not the answer to the park financing problem. Perhaps use fees, limited to specified facilities, would be more acceptable.

The Straits of Mackinaw State Park, administered by the Mackinaw Island park commission, is self supporting through small use fees for camping and electricity. No charge is made for parking or for admission. Here is perhaps a partial answer to the lack of money develop the state park system as the legislature originally planned.

"We have the lands and waters, the physical features and the climate," said Elmer, state park chief. "We need funds to develop the facilities needed for public recreation and for the proper maintenance and operation of these facilities."

When you visit the state parks this summer, don't be too critical. There are 60 parks, good and poor, large and small, to be maintained. Everything is free—admission, camping, bathing, and automobile parking. You shouldn't have much trouble getting your money's worth!
